Charter

The charter for ECLA school aims to bring together the family with the teachers, enabling the teaching and education that is given to the children to be a harmonious, comprehensive and coherent action.

The children's education is the responsibility of the parents. ECLA school partners with them in this education and we aim to impart both academic and spiritual knowledge, to contribute to the development of the child's identity and character, all of this rooted in a vision that is inspired by the Bible.

A. Intellectual development

The school's objectives:

- to impart academic knowledge which covers intellectual, spiritual, artistic, physical and manual areas.
- to enable every child to develop their potential, to give them a desire to learn and a thirst for discovering new things.

The means to implement this:

- to acquire work and learning methods.
- to teach in a way that is adapted to every child's individual need.

B. Relational and social development

The school's objectives:

- to develop respect for others, for oneself, for authority, for creation, for God.
- to encourage a spirit of service and responsibility.
- to learn to communicate.
- to prepare the students to integrate well into society.
- to develop a sense of belonging to a group (family, school, church, nation) and solidarity.

The means to implement this:

- rules that are based on respect and love for others.
- civic, moral and Biblical instruction.
- school outings, travelling, exchanges, socialisation, integration.

C. Spiritual development

This is carried out through all of the teaching that is provided, without being limited to just one subject.

The school's objectives:

- to participate in the restoration and development of the three areas of the personality (body, soul, spirit).
- to train in seeking God, to communicate an understanding that is both theoretical and practical.

The means to implement this:

- to follow the official curriculum in the light of Biblical values.
- to develop critical thinking, to help develop character.
- to share and pray with the teacher
- to read/discover the Bible, to develop the ability to listen.
